and the airline stewardess, 25-year-old Mary Jean Hinckley of Millville, NJ, who helped the new arrival into the world.

Said Mary Jean, "I want all mine on ice."

The surprised mother commented: I hadn't expected the baby for another month and a half."

The father, waiting at Rhein-Main Airport, Germany for the plane to complete its mission, told reporters, "Gosh, this floors me."

THE CHILD WAS born in the crew's compartment of the American Overseas Airlines' "Flagship Scotland," en route from New York to Frankfurt, while most of the 42 passengers slept.

Capt. John J. Hermann, Norwich, Conn., in command of the plane, said, "I took a check of our position and we were right over the Weather Ship Lima. A little boy may want to sometime when he was born."

The first word came in a message from Hermann at 9:30 AM: "Passenger aboard pears to be in labor." Then at 10 he reported: "Baby born. Mother Mike Hinckley went ..."

Suspect Denies Statement In Vallone Killing

The alleged statement by the Vincent Vallone slaying was called a trend Monday, and before capital proceedings were started to get the two men charged with the shooting out of the County Jail.

Diego L. Carlino, 31, of 3000 Dowling, whose name is on the statement Sheriff C.V. (Buster) Kern has, denied making it.

HE ALSO DENIED killing Vallone and said he had "nothing against" Vallone.

Carlino said he did sign something at Texas City early Sunday, but he said he was so groggy because of a terrible beating officers gave him that he did not know what he was signing. He did not make a statement, he said, the paper he signed could have been blank or full of writing for all he knew.

The other man charged, Louis [illegible] Martinez, 19, of 3000 Craigmont, also claimed he was beaten unmercifully by officers who arrested him. Martinez confessed taking part in the Vallone killing.

Martinez said he took no part in the killing, He said he knew Vallone for 10 years and had nothing against him.

PERCY FOREMAN, attorney for the two, filed an application for a writ of habeas corpus, charging they are being held unlawfully. Monday afternoon, Criminal District Judge Lyndon G. Kittrell set a hearing on the case for 2 PM Friday.

Mr Foreman asked in his application that bonds of $1000 be set for his clients, who have been denied bond so far.

Meanwhile, Sheriff Kern admitted he has much more work to do on the case.

"I don't know yet how well connect Martinez up in the killing," the sheriff said.

A fruitless search for the murder weapon, a shotgun, went on all day and the first half of Monday night.

CARLINO TOLD him, Sheriff Kern said, that he threw a shotgun into Buffalo Bayou from the Sabine Street Bridge.

A 300-pound electro magnet, around by a crane, was used in an effort to dredge up the gun from the bayou mud. The dredge did dredged up a sizeable collection of scrap metal, but no shotgun.

While the search for the gun was going on, two small boys told a reporter that they had seen a tough man pull a shotgun out of the bayou near the bridge about four months ago. The tough man, the boys said, threw the gun in a wheelbarrow and
